

About The Sunshine Act

The National Physician Payment Transparency Program (Open Payments), a.k.a. Sunshine Act, is a section of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act of 2010 that requires pharmaceutical and medical device companies to report to the Federal government on certain payments and other transfers of value they make to US-licensed physicians and teaching hospitals.